

First Airplane Port in Nation Is Opened Here

Aviators Soar Overland as Speakers Indulge in Oratorical Flights and Strong Predictions of Success

Mayor Refuses to Fly Landing at 81st Street and the Hudson River Seen as World Center Soon

The first air port in America was opened yesterday afternoon at Eighty-first Street and the Hudson River, while airplanes dipped and circled overhead and the orators soared into optimistic prophecies for the future of the port.

"This landing place may well become the center of airplane passenger and freight traffic to all parts of the world," said Murray Hulbert, Dock Commissioner, who cooperated with the Police Reserve Air Forces in establishing the port. "From it in the near future air craft will take passengers over three routes, to Boston, to Albany and to Washington."

Rear Admiral John H. Glennon, commandant of the Third Naval District, saw the air port as the official gateway to the United States.

Urges Site as Memorial
"This would be the appropriate place for the great national memorial to the heroes of the great war," he said. "Through a great arch erected here we should bring home the bodies of the dead. It will become the official landing place for distinguished guests of this government."

Major Charles J. Glidden, who has just returned from a trip around the world in the interest of the first aerial derby, announced that he had appointed commissioners for the derby in sixty cities. He said the first trip by air around the world probably would be made next summer.

"Soon you will be able to buy a ticket on Broadway for an airplane trip round the world. Aviation is the coming thing in the Far East," he said. "In Hong Kong, for example, they have an air service under the police department for the purpose of hunting pirates on the river."

Major Glidden said that two American aviators in a Handley Page machine probably would make a test flight around the world this summer, preparatory to the derby. They expect to make the trip in 250 flying hours, he said. The date of their flight will depend upon reports of climate conditions in the tropical oceans.

Mayor Hylan caught the contagion of prophecy, and declared that in the future all docks built by the city would have landing places for aircraft on the roof.

Mayor Renews His Plea
Renewing his claims that he was "maliciously" treated by the newspapers of the city, Mayor Hylan said his hearers not to believe what they read about him.

"When I was a candidate for office only one paper in this city supported me," he said. "In spite of the malicious criticisms of the press, I have had but one purpose since I became Mayor; that was to serve the people of this great city. I have encouraged the commissioners of all departments to use their best judgment and to work unhesitatingly for the public good, without interference from the Mayor's office."

The crowds were treated to exhibition flights by all manner of airplanes, some of which swooped so low that they blew the straw hats off the heads of small boys on the freight trains below Riverside Drive. The Navy Department had sent one dirigible and five seaplanes to the regatta. The Army Air Service sent four biplanes and the Trans-Atlantic Company sent three passenger planes.

Mayor Hylan declined the invitation to ride and, accompanied by most of the invited guests, sailed away in the John F. Hylan for the port of the Battery.

Without Funds on Eve of Wedding, Forges Check

Love and good judgement sometimes clash. Take the case of Sol Sklar. Sol, who is twenty years old and lives at 1737 Madison Avenue, was held in $1,500 bail for the grand jury when arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Sweetser, in Harlem Court, on a charge of forgery.

The young man was to have been married last night. He told the magistrate that, being without funds to buy furniture and establish a home for the bride, he forged the name of S. Rothschild, a furniture dealer, at 3815 Third Avenue, to a check for $300 and presented it for payment to Isadore Price, of 1737 Madison Avenue. He was arrested by Detectives Rudolph Unger and Joseph Ryan, of the East 104th Street police station.

General Weather Conditions.
WASHINGTON, June 19.—Air pressure is high over the northern half of the country and low over the South Atlantic and Gulf states and along the Mexican border. This pressure disturbance has been attended by cool weather generally east of the Rocky Mountains and showers in the Atlantic and Gulf states, the middle plains states and the north Rocky Mountain region.

High temperatures prevail over the interior of California and southern Arizona. The outlook is for somewhat fair weather, but with considerable cloudiness and moderate temperature. Sunday and Monday in the Atlantic states north of Maryland and in the Ohio Valley and the region of the Great Lakes. In the South Atlantic and east Gulf states, Tennessee and Kentucky, the weather will be cloudy and showery Sunday and Monday. No important temperature changes are indicated for the Eastern half of the country during the next forty-eight hours.

District Forecasts.—Eastern New York and southern New England, partly cloudy today and to-morrow; moderate temperature. Delaware, cloudy, possibly a shower today; to-morrow partly cloudy; moderate temperature. Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey, cloudy today and to-morrow; moderate temperature. Western Pennsylvania and western New York, generally fair today and to-morrow; moderate temperature.

Our 26th JUNE SALE

FOLLOWS in the footsteps of our other famous Annual Sales, each one featuring compelling values and each one of dominant interest to economy seekers.

FOR nearly one hundred years Hearn has offered at regular intervals during the year SALES that deserve being termed "big." Some of these sales last a month, others not so long; but whatever the duration of the sale, the assortments and matchless values are maintained until the very last day.

AS in the case of the June Sale, other attractive sales, such as "Exceptional Sales," "Morning Specials" and "Start-of-Season Sales," occur simultaneously with the usual annual events, thus offering double attraction to the thrifty.

THIS liberal policy has been in force during the life of this store, and will continue to be the aim of the Hearn family, for, as is well known, the same family (even to the fourth generation) is in control now as when the Hearn policies were first formulated.
